Q: Safari 5.1.7 breaks IE validation, however, IE 6 still works I've ran into a problem that I didn't notice before: (new to the company, so don't know my limitations) I created a jQuery plugin that works perfectly in all browsers except for Safari, for some reason. I don't understand why as Safari 5.1.7 should be upgraded to a recent version (which works everywhere else) The plugin has a validate method. For some reason, it doesn't work on Safari and IE. I've made a fiddle here: The reason why i don't suggest a newer version is that I use jQuery 1.3.2. But since it's for client stuff, it's gotta work. Does anyone know how to fix this? Edit: I just want it to work in Safari. A: You can try to use.click() instead of.hover() to improve performance of browser. `$(document).ready(function(){
$('.Hover').hover(function(){ $(this).addClass('HoverActive'); }, function(){
$(this).removeClass('HoverActive'); }); $('#bug').click(function(){ alert("I 6d1f23a050`
